FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

BITBEAN RE-BRANDS TO BEAN CASH

In September 2017 the name Bitbean was officially published as a service trademark of a United States corporation known as 1on1 Development LLC. Bean Core was not involved in the original naming of BitBean, the digital currency and network, and as such, was not able to carry out due diligence in its name when it was launched in February 2015. Bean Core took over development of BitBean weeks after it was launched, and after the original developer abandoned it.

In August 2017, Bean Core's executive board reached a consensus and published a RFC to the community regarding the proposal to re-brand. Since then, there has been overwhelming support and excitement by the community to proceed with the re-branding. Bean Core is pleased to officially announce that BitBean, the digital currency and network, will now be called "Bean Cash". The new name follows in the vision of Satoshi Nakamoto for Bitcoin, of a "peer-to-peer Electronic Cash" – Bean Cash will build upon that vision! With the re-branding, the following is changed:

- △ Ticker BITB is to be changed to BEAN
- △ Internet Domain: bitbean.org to beancash.org
- △ Currency Code (for ISO 4217 Adoption): XBN Note: The first "X" is important because it designates a commodity that is independent of any government.
- △ Cash Symbol: β (Code-page 437: 00DF/225 for Point of Sale/Service Implementation)

Infrastructure will proceed to be updated. Currently Bean Cash Core v1.1.2.2 application binaries for Windows & Linux, along with updated source are available : www.beancash.org
